

COURT ANDERSON

Attorney, Shareholder

canderson@hensonefron.com | (612) 252-2882

“My approach is aggressive but disciplined, and I excel at identifying the strengths of my client’s case and finding the clearest path to a successful outcome. When a dispute arises, my clients know I will make a Herculean effort to win, without losing sight of the bigger picture or their bottom line.”

ABOUT ME

With diverse and extensive courtroom experience, I know how to sell a case. I relentlessly and aggressively work to convince judges and juries that your position is equitable and right. I guarantee that I will care for your case as if it were my own.

I have handled well over 500 depositions and litigated cases in federal and state courts throughout the United States regarding:

- contractual disputes
- business torts
- employment litigation
- construction litigation
- shareholder disputes
- federal and state securities disputes
- probate litigation
- bankruptcy litigation

Fueled by the unique combination of financial acumen and litigation moxie, I will strategically fight for you while protecting your best interests and bottom line. Most disputes have a financial implication, from balance sheets and cash flow statements to tax returns. With 10 years of accounting experience, I deftly investigate what the numbers mean, where they originated, and how they could have been manipulated.

I take the long view to create a lasting client relationship, providing value and a return on your legal investment. This means not over-litigating or over-billing in relation to the amount at stake. Initially, I set realistic expectations about the strength of your case—from creating a factual record to solidify your position to determining your potential recovery. I strive to settle when possible, as soon as possible, but if that’s not practical, then litigate to win.

RESULTS

- Obtained a jury verdict of nearly $2,000,000 on behalf of Governor Jesse Ventura in Ventura v. Kyle, 2012 WL 6634779 (D. Minn. 2012).
