“My priority is to develop a deep understanding of your unique situation. Gaining that insight allows me to deliver the best options to meet your needs so that you can make informed decisions with confidence.”

ABOUT ME

Family law is more than a legal process; it blends personal, emotional, and financial issues. I help you take one step at a time, focusing on what you can do in the moment, while never losing sight of your long term goals.

I represent business owners, executives, athletes, politicians, physicians, financial advisors, and other professionals who need a strong advocate to help navigate difficult family transitions. Whether a complex financial matter or a thorny child custody issue, my clients appreciate receiving not only strategic legal counsel, but practical advice to move forward with the rest of their lives. When someone places their trust in me, it is my job to deliver.

That means carefully listening to my clients to understand their unique needs and then working hand-in-hand to formulate a plan to accomplish their goals. From there, my role can take on many forms: behind-the-scenes consulting, generating creative solutions in mediation, vigorous advocacy in the courtroom, and everything in between.

No matter what the plan is, some core principles are always present. My clients depend on me for straightforward, honest answers to their questions. They receive my objective opinion, even in those tough situations where it may not be what they want to hear. My clients know that providing value to them is essential to me. That means never losing sight of what is at stake, while candidly assessing the legal fees to get there.

I am fortunate to truly enjoy my work. I have practiced family law exclusively during my sixteen-year career and have represented clients facing a variety of complex family law disputes involving:

- Business valuation
- Defending and obtaining awards of spousal maintenance
- Evaluating executive compensation
- Nonmarital asset tracing
- Defending and invading nonmarital assets
- Analysis of tax issues
- Assessing dissipation of assets
- Collection of child support and spousal maintenance arrears
- Analysis of retirement and spousal maintenance
- Child custody and parenting time
- Grand parent visitation
- Third-party custody
- Interstate child custody
- Domestic abuse
- Post-divorce proceedings

I also have extensive experience representing clients on family law appeals. Appellate work is not for everyone, as it requires an entirely different skill set, but it is an area I thoroughly enjoy.

RESULTS

- Defeated claim of $50,000 in attorney's fees (our client was ordered to pay $0)
- Retained as co-counsel to assist another law firm litigate a difficult divorce and obtained a very favorable result for our client after trial
- Represented mother in contentious post-decree proceeding and defeated father's attempt to reduce the child support that our client counted on while also obtaining a substantial award of conduct-based attorney's fees
- Negotiated creative settlement in complex multi-party custody case that allowed our clients to obtain custody of a non-biological child as third-party custodians without going to trial
- Successfully litigated and obtained for single father joint physical custody and equal parenting time with his three-year-old child
- Collected unpaid support and spousal maintenance from retirement assets that would normally be exempted
- Obtained the appointment of a receiver to collect substantial unsatisfied property award
